The National Audit Office (NAO) of Malta, in collaboration with the European Court of Auditors (ECA), held an Annual Joint Seminar in Floriana. The focus of this year's seminar was the crucial theme of "Digitisation and the Future of Public Audit". The event included NAO staff, MPs from the Public Accounts Parliamentary Committee, former Maltese Auditors, the Principal Permanent Secretary and DG, Internal Audit and Investigations Department.

The seminar aimed to serve as a platform for insightful discussions and the exchange of experiences and technologies and artificial intelligence in the realm of public audit. Speakers from both the NAO and ECA shared their perspectives, experiences, and future strategies on this transformative subject.

The program featured an introductory address by Mr Charles Deguara, Auditor General, the ECA represented by Dr George Marius Hyzler, ECA Member, the ECA's experiences and future directions presented by Dr Fossati, ECA Expert, general implications of AI explored by Dr Michel Camilleri, a former academic presented by Simon Camilleri, NAO Manager of IT Audits and Operations. The key takeaways were presented by Noel Camilleri, Deputy Auditor General. Closing reflections on the theme were then shared by Marius Hyzler.

This joint NAO-ECA Seminar offered valuable insights into the challenges and opportunities associated with the development and integration of AI in public audit practices. The seminar also provided an opportunity for the excellent cooperation and working relationship between these two audit institutions.
